Remaking Area Studies Terence Wesley-Smith, Jon Goss, 2010-04-30 This collection identifies the challenges facing area studies as an organized intellectual project in this era of globalization focusing in particular on conceptual issues and implications for pedagogical practice in Asia and the Pacific The crisis in area studies is widely acknowledged various prescriptions for solutions have been forthcoming but few have also pursued practical applications of critical ideas for both teachers and students

Remaking Area Studies not only makes the case for more culturally sensitive and empowering forms of area studies but indicates how these ideas can be translated into effective student-centered learning practices through the establishment of interactive regional learning communities This pathbreaking work features original contributions from leading theorists of globalization and critics of area studies as practiced in the U.S. Essays in the first part of the book problematize the accepted categories of traditional area-making practices Taken together they provide an alternative conceptual framework for area studies that informs the subsequent contributions on pedagogical practices To incorporate critical perspectives from the areas studied chapters examine the development of area studies programs in Japan and the Pacific Islands Not surprisingly given the lessons learned from critical examinations of area studies in the U.S. there are competing state, institutional, and intellectual perspectives involved in each of these contexts that need to be taken into account before embarking on an interactive and collaborative area studies across Pacific Asia Finally area studies practitioners reflect on their experiences developing and teaching interactive web-based courses linking classrooms in six universities located in Hawaii, Singapore, the Philippines, Japan, New Zealand, and Fiji These collaborative on-line teaching and learning initiatives were designed specifically to address some of the conceptual and theoretical concerns associated with the production and dissemination of contemporary area studies knowledge Multiauthored chapters draw useful lessons for international collaborative learning in an era of globalization both in terms of their successes and occasional failures. Uniquely combining theoretical institutional and practical perspectives across the Asia Pacific region, Remaking Area Studies contributes to a rethinking and reinvigorating of regional approaches to knowledge formation in higher education.

Diversity Amid Globalization - World Regions, Environment, Development Les Rowntree (et al), Women's Empowerment for Sustainability in Africa Robert Dibia, 2019-01-17. This book uses an open explorative approach to deal with the different aspects of gender discrimination and gender empowerment policies as well as their impact on economic development and capacity building in several African countries. It uses primary and secondary data to present the argument that without the full input of women, sustainable development will not be achieved in many African countries. This book is the first text written by knowledgeable gender issue experts that understand the culture of and lived and conducted research in Africa. It provides many examples of the relationships between gender and economic development around the African continent, highlighting different processes and practices. As such, the contributors here illustrate the impact of weak gender policies and the ability to adequately develop female capacity building that could lead to wide spread sustainable economic growth in Africa. They also explore a wide range of new dimensions and variables that are commonly ignored by other text books on gender equality. The book will help graduate, undergraduate students and other readers to understand women's policies in the past, present and future by analysing and illustrating cultural, political and socio-historical contexts which have shaped women's role in the economic and sustainable development of Africa.
