

ENGINEERING
WORKSHOP
DRAWING
VOLUME TWO

This volume is intended to be used as a continuation of the material given in Volume 1, and is more advanced with regard to the exercises given in drawing.

The student is expected to be able to extract details from arrangements of machine drawings, and also to assemble the various details together.

The drawing exercises are in most cases taken from tools, jigs and fixtures, because an engineering apprentice should be familiar with these, and if required he could make most of these tools in the workshop from his own personal drawings.

Various components common to engineering are given in the form of short lectures for the benefit of students, and it is advisable to make free-hand sketches of these as an aid to memorising the details and obtaining proficiency in sketching.
