Introduction/Government Spending in Perspective

Government is a major player in the economy of the United States, spending more than all privately owned businesses combined. It spends huge amounts on 1 _____, 2 _____, and other programs. On a 3 _____, or per person basis, this amounts to almost $10,000 for every person in the country. Two Kinds of Spending

Government makes two broad kinds of expenditures. The first is for 6 _____. The second is in the form of what are called 7 _____. These are payments for which the government receives neither goods nor services in return. One type is known as a 8 _____. An example is the interstate highway construction programs for which the federal government grants money to cover the major part of the cost. The states through which the highways pass pay the rest.

Impact of Government Spending

Government spending decisions directly affect 9 _____. Resources are shifted to wherever the government chooses to spend its revenues. Government spending also influences the 10 _____, or the way in which income is allocated among families, individuals, or other groups in the economy. The government, by producing 11 _____, is often in competition with producers in the 12 _____.
