Technologies for Sustainable Development Jean-Claude Bolay,Silvia Hostettler,Eileen Hazboun,2013-08-04 Whilst scientific research can be crucial in guiding innovation and development throughout the world it can be too detached from real world applications particularly in developing and emerging countries Technologies for Sustainable Development brings together the best 20 papers from the 2012 Conference of the EPFL UNESCO Chair in Technologies for Development with the aim to explore and discuss ways to link scientific research with development practices to assist practitioners and reply directly to social needs In order for technologies to be adopted it is not sufficient that they are low cost and affordable but also socially culturally and environmentally accepted by the intended users Technologies for Sustainable Development aims to explore and answer the following three questions What is an appropriate technology How can we ensure a sustainable integrated development What are the conditions for co creation and transfer of such technologies Focusing on the importance of improving working relationships between stakeholders researchers and decision makers between scientists and industrial sectors between academics and the population Technologies for Sustainable Development opens a dialogue necessary to create and implement the best solutions adapted to social demands Design for Water Heather

Kinkade-Levario,2007-06-01 A guide to alternate water collection for green new developments aimed at conserving water and reusing it wisely In an era of dwindling resources water is poised to become the new oil as the entire world now faces the reality of a decreasing supply of clean water To avert a devastating shortage we must not only look at alternate water sources for existing structures we must also plan our new developments differently Design for Water is an accessible and clearly written guide to alternate water collection with a focus on rainwater harvesting in the urban environment The book outlines the process of water collection from multiple sources landscape residential commercial industrial school park and municipal systems provides numerous case studies details the assembly and actual application of equipment includes specific details schematics and references All aspects of rainwater harvesting are outlined including passive and active system set up storage stormwater reuse distribution purification analysis and filtration There is even a section on rainwater harvesting for wildlife In addition to rainwater there are several affordable and accessible alternate sources including cooling tower bleed off water air conditioning condensate gray water and fog collection Design for Water is geared to providing those making development decisions and guidelines with the information they need to set up passive harvesting techniques The book will especially appeal to engineers landscape architects municipal decision makers developers and land owners Sustainable

Built Environment for People and Society ,2025-07-30 The pursuit of sustainable built environments has become a strategic global priority in addressing the complex interplay of social economic environmental and human development challenges outlined in the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals SDGs Accelerating urbanization climate risks and widening inequality are placing unprecedented strain on cities and communities demanding a fundamental shift in how we design deliver and manage the built environment Sustainable built environments are central to achieving key Sustainable Development Goals SDGs particularly SDG 11 Sustainable Cities and Communities SDG 3 Good Health and Wellbeing SDG 7 Affordable and Clean Energy and SDG 13 Climate Action Built infrastructure must minimize environmental impact maximize energy efficiency and enhance the quality of life while placing people at the center ensuring inclusivity resilience and adaptability to future needs A leading example of this approach is the Zero Energy Mass Custom Home ZEMCH initiative

ZEMCH promotes the delivery of affordable high performance housing that meets both individual and community needs By combining mass customization with energy efficient design and renewable energy technologies ZEMCH homes aim to achieve net zero energy consumption reduce their carbon footprint and enhance occupant wellbeing Equity and accessibility must also be embedded in the built environment ensuring that all individuals regardless of income age or ability can access safe functional and dignified spaces Ultimately sustainable development is not only about constructing greener buildings but also about shaping environments that foster social cohesion environmental stewardship and long term wellbeing Achieving this requires cross sector collaboration meaningful community engagement and the integration of sustainability principles throughout the entire lifecycle of the built environment transforming it into a catalyst for positive change for both people and society
